

RETRIBUTION.

A Son Shoots His Father's Assassin in the Courthouse.

Two Persons Seriously Wounded as the Result of a Feud.

Tragic End of a Quarrel in Tennessee—One of the Most Sensational Shootings in the History of Nashville—Shot by the side of his Wife.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 14.—One of the most sensational shootings in the history of Nashville occurred here Monday in the courthouse. Thomas Jones, a young man, shot J. J. Winters down as the latter was walking by the side of his wife along the hallway leading from the criminal court-room. As Winters fell his wife dropped upon her knees by his side, crying hysterically, "Tom Jones has killed my husband." Jones fired five shots at the victim. Three of them took effect, and the result will probably be fatal. James Bonduant, who was standing near where the shooting occurred, was struck in the right groin by one of the bullets which wounded Winters, and was dangerously wounded.

J. J. Winters and his brother Andrew had just succeeded, through their attorneys, in having the fees in which they are indicted in the criminal court for the assassination of Jones' father, postponed until the next term of court, and J. J. Winters, with his wife, was passing out of the court room, when young Jones followed and shot him down.

The killing of Monday is the last act in a tragedy which was begun June 15 last. On that day the Winters brothers, Andrew and Joe, men of about forty-six and fifty-two years, respectively, made an assault on the younger Jones, and Andrew Winters completely ridged him, while shot from a double-barreled shotgun. This assault grew out of the fact that the Winters brothers had tried to persuade young Jones to turn the barn of a man named Henderson, against whom they had a grudge. Jones refused to commit the crime, and instead told his father, with whom he resided, Henderson. The Winters brothers, hearing that young Jones had betrayed them, swore vengeance, and several days later caught him away from home and attacked him.

Both brothers were armed with double-barreled shotguns. Andrew fired first, and Jones fell upon his back. Joe then ran up and pointed his gun at the prostrate man, and would have fired him with shot had his brother prevented him, saying: "Don't shoot a dead dog when he's down."

For the assault upon his son the elder Jones had the Winters brothers indicted. Both the Jones and Winters families live near the Hermitage, twelve miles from this city. On the night of September 15, after the Winters returned from court, where he had had the Winters brothers indicted, he was called out of the house and shot down, being instantly killed. The Winters brothers were suspected, and the coroner's inquest laid the murder at their door. The grand jury investigated the case and indicted the Winters brothers, Andrew Winters for doing the killing and Joe Winters for being accessory.

The case came up in the criminal court Monday. Andrew had been in jail since the killing, but Joe had been out on bond. The court room was packed with people who had come to witness the trial, but in this they were disappointed. The defense made affidavit that important witnesses were absent, and the case was continued. Andrew Winters was taken back to jail by an officer and Joe walked out of court with his wife. The case was followed by Jones and shot down. Something like a panic ensued, and it is miraculous that no more fatality resulted. Andrew Winters heard the shots, while on the way to jail, and remarked excitedly to an officer: "Tom Jones has killed my brother."

Although the probable killing was one of the boldest and most desperate ever committed here, popular sympathy seems to be with the boy who acted as the avenger of his father's murder, and his own brutal treatment at the hands of the Winters brothers. He was wonderfully calm after the shooting, and made no attempt to flee. After he was arrested he said to the officers: "I have no regret over what I have done, and am willing to bear the consequences. I only wish that I might have killed both of them at the one time."

Winters was taken to the hospital, where he lies between life and death. Bonduant was taken to his home, and is in a critical condition. Young Jones was much distressed when he learned that he had shot unintentionally a man who had never wronged him.

DRIVEN INSANE

Is a Wife fit the widow-bliss of Her Husband?

CHICAGO, March 14.—A pitiful story is told in connection with the illness of William H. Munderloh, German consul at Montreal, Quebec, who was stricken with paralysis in this city a week ago when on his way to California to visit his family. Mrs. Munderloh was telegraphed for and arrived here two days ago. Her husband's condition was very critical and the doctors informed her that there was absolutely no hope for his recovery. This information had a very depressing effect on the unfortunate woman, and she began to show signs of mental derangement. Saturday she passed into a state of such frenzy that the physicians in attendance found it necessary to remove her from the sick room, and Sunday evening she was placed in a private sanitarium. Mrs. Munderloh, besides having been consul for the German empire for many years, is vice-president of the board of trade of Montreal.

W. M. RAMSEY Judge Jackson's Probable Successor as Circuit Judge.

CINCINNATI, March 14.—The attorneys of the southern district of Ohio, since the senate failed to confirm the nomination of Judge Benson Hanchett as the successor to Judge Howell E. Jackson as United States circuit judge for the western division, have agreed the name of William M. Ramsey, of Cincinnati, as a candidate for the position.

It is said a ponderous petition, bearing the names of hundreds of attorneys and leading citizens and democrats, has been prepared, and will be sent post haste to Washington. Mr. Ramsey is one of the most useful members of the bar in this section, often quoted as authority on legal rulings, and a close student, conservative, yet very popular. He is the senior member of the firm of Ramsey, Maxwell & Ramsey, who do an immense United States court business.

BURGULARS CAPTURED.

Flunder Recovered and the Thieves Locked in Jail.

RIDGEVILLE, Ind., March 14.—On Saturday night the general store of Ad W. Hall, at Ridgeville, was burglarized. The burglars tried to crack the safe, but broke their drill, and left it in the safe door. Early Monday morning W. Hall came to town, secured the services of Detective Tom Hawkins, and started in pursuit of his long-lost-looking man who had been seen loafing around the store during the day.

At Day's Creek house they caught the party, and the stolen goods were found in possession of the tramps. The detective bound the thieves with binder twine, not having enough clips to go round, and, with Wells' assistance, hauled the fellows in Winchester jail. Johnson and the same gang had just been released from the Winchester jail on Saturday.

Stabbing Victim.

CINCINNATI, March 14.—Henry Charleston, of Philadelphia, who is visiting his brother on Linwood avenue, this city, was stabbed on Saturday night in the abdomen at 525 First street, with a Phil. Dlg. They became involved in a quarrel and Charleston was stabbed in the abdomen. A job was called and the wounded man was removed to the city hospital, where his condition was pronounced serious. He was arrested and locked up, waiting to be killed. He admitted the attack, but said he did it in self-defense. He is an expression.

Barber's to be tried.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 14.—Delegates to the annual convention of the National Association of Barbers, which opened Monday afternoon with George W. Miller, president of the organization, in the chair, have arrived here in fair numbers. The executive committee was in session Monday morning at the Fremont hotel. The delegates were the strong ground against Sunday closing of shops and also in favor of a uniform rate of fifteen cents for shaving colored men cuts another.

CINCINNATI, March 14.—Dave Sauters and Garrett Wheeler, two colored laborers, quarreled in Thursday evening 8 1/2 miles landing. Sunday night, while under the influence of liquor, Sauters finally stabbed Wheeler in the chest twice with a dirk, and he made his escape, but was arrested later at his home and locked up on a charge of cutting to kill. Wheeler was taken to the city hospital by patrol 4, where his wounds were pronounced serious.

Another Revolver Accident.

PORT WAYNE, Ind., March 14.—H. H. Goldwater, a traveling salesman, accidentally shot a child and a woman. He had just cleaned his revolver and was carelessly showing it workings to the inmates of the rooming house. He made a mistake and the bullet was discharged accidentally and the bullet went through Mrs. Pischon's stomach. She lived only half an hour.

Driven to the Hospital.

DANVILLE, Ky., March 14.—Frank Fox, a young business man about thirty years of age, committed suicide Monday morning by jumping from a train with a razor. He is thought to have done the deed while laboring under a temporary fit of insanity caused by a prolonged and unbearable illness from dyspepsia. He was unmarried.

Stepped Off a Train.

CINCINNATI, March 14.—Ex-Congressman C. A. Miller stepped from the top of a train at the depot at Santa Fe, N. M., Saturday night and was badly injured. It is supposed that he fell from a bombshell he walked off the train while in motion.

Fell Into the River While Intoxicated.
